HONGKONG, THURSDAY, NOV 30, 1905.

AFTERMATH OF THE TOKIO

RIOTS.

As a result of investigations which the Japanese police have been quietly carrying out ever since the rioting at Tokio in September last, a number of further arrests have just been made. Some of the prisoners are men of considerable eminence, notably Mr Kono, who was President of the Lower House, and who is still an M.P. It is alleged that Mr Kono and a number of other influential gentlemen plotted a revolution and that the rioting was not occasioned by a sudden and perfectly understandable ebullition of discontent and disgust at the peace terms, but had been carefully arranged. No hint is given in the Japanese papers, which are immediately available, in regard to the purpose which the supposed revolutionists held in view. As a rule incendiary persons who tangle themselves up in rebellions have some definite idea of what they want. It is difficult for anyone who has been living in Japan recently to conceive what fault the Japanese can find with the present system of Government. Most foreigners resent the wearying and seemingly senseless espionage which the Japanese authorities appear to consider necessary, but the system of Government which was adopted after the downfall of the Shogun seems peculiarly suitable to the genius of the Japanese themselves. Of course there are those in Japan who sigh when they think of the old days when their fathers were practically Kings with all a King's powers and privileges. These survivals of the old daimio class look upon such men as Count Katsura, the present Prime Minister, and even Marquis Ito, with the most ineffable contempt. Both Count Katsura and Marquis Ito are of the new nobility and not unnaturally they are disinclined by those who, a few years ago might, with impunity, have sliced either of their half-to test a new blade. Had the done such a thing it would only have remarked that His Excellency had a playful humour; the bisected Ito or Katsura would have been hove into a ditch, and a respectful servant would cleanse the honourable sword. It is conceivable that some of the old daimio, desolated at the rapid spread of civilization over the country, were insane enough to dream of restoring the Shogunate, but they must have known in their hearts that the enterprise was suicidal. The upshot of the legal proceedings which have been instituted against Mr Kono and his associates will be awaited with interest by those who are watching the political evolution of that fascinating country which now finds pride in calling itself the 'England of the East' but which may ere long speak of Great Britain as the Japan of the West.

Few visitors to Japan are aware that leprosy is very prevalent in many parts of the country, more especially among the residents of Kioto. Up to the present time no real attempt has been made by the Government to segregate the sufferers from this terrible scourge and the result is that, as in Peking and most other Chinese cities, the stranger going along the street, often unwittingly bumps into an unfortunate in an advanced stage of leprosy. According to the Japan Mail there are no less than 30,000 lepers in Japan. There are four hospitals for the treatment of the disease all of which were founded by foreigners.
